14) What is the monthly cash rebate payout?

The cash rebate is calculated on a daily basis, as a percentage of your basic premium (minus No Claim Discount and direct discount) based on the variables in the Rebate Table below:

Tier	Kilometer Range/day	Daily Rebate %	Total Rebate for a year
1	Less than 14 km	0.082%	30%
2	Less than 22 km	0.055%	20%
3	Less than 33 km	0.027%	10%

Note: Fractions of distance driven will be rounded up to the nearest km.

Here's how your cash rebate is calculated based on the illustration tables below.

Section A – Information of your odometer uploads

This section contains the basic information of your odometer readings – coverage start date, basic premium, and upload date & count.

Section B – Calculation to determine your eligible Rebate Tier

- The difference in mileage (row D) and Number of days (row E) between the current and activation odometer readings will be calculated. For example, in illustration 1, the difference between the 3rd and 1st odometer readings are 900km and 150 days.
- The difference in mileage (row D) will be divided by the Number of days (row E) to derive the Average Kilometre per day (row F). The Average Kilometre per day (row F) will be rounded up to the nearest kilometre and then matched to the eligible cash rebate tier in the Rebate Table. For example in Illustration1, in the 3rd odometer reading, the average kilometre per day (row F) is 6km which is less than 14 km/day, thus the cash rebate tier is Tier 1.

Section C – Calculations to determine your Total Cash Rebate Amount

- The Total Cash Rebate (S$) is calculated by multiplying the number of days between the current upload and previous upload (row I) with the eligible rebate percentage (row H) and the basic premium. For example in illustration 1, the Total Cash Rebate (row J) for the 3rd upload is $31 \text{ days} \times 0.082\% \times \text{S$}1,200 = \text{S$}30.50$.
- The Total Cash Rebate % (row K) is calculated by dividing the Total Cash Rebate (row J) with the basic premium of S$1,200. For example, in illustration 1, the Total Cash Rebate % (row K) for the 3rd upload is $\text{S$}30.50 / 1,200 = 2.54$

The difference between illustrations 1 & 2 below demonstrates the rebate you will enjoy based on different activation dates.
